

Are you a parent or co-parent of a baby less than two months old?

Would you like to take part in a study that will help support families to give babies the best possible start in life?

Researchers at the University of York need parents and co-parents with children aged up to 8 weeks to take part in an 18-month study of child development and wellbeing.

Researchers will visit you four times over 18 months to ask questions about you, your child and the services you use.

We need people to discuss regular services offered to families and people who can participate in schemes such as the Incredible Years Infant and Toddler programmes. Soon-to-be mothers/fathers, uncles/aunties and grandparents are all eligible to join.

You will receive shopping vouchers and a DVD as a thank you for helping with this important research.
